The difference between the Increased Payment Amount and the original regular payment amount is referred to as the "Increase Difference".

The sum of the prepayment privileges exercised in the same Mortgage Year cannot be greater than 10% of the original principal amount.

Notes:

- A mortgage year is defined by the annual anniversary of the Interest Adjustment Date of the mortgage as indicated in the loan agreement.
- Borrower mortgage must be paid as agreed to exercise prepayment privileges outlined above. A mortgage in default of any terms, covenants, conditions, or provisions is not eligible for prepayment privileges.
- Each prepayment privilege is not cumulative from Mortgage Year to Mortgage Year. If you have not used a prepayment privilege in one Mortgage Year, the prepayment privilege cannot be carried forward and used in a later Mortgage Year. Subject to the prepayment privileges, if you pay the full outstanding amount of your mortgage before maturity, then a Prepayment Charge, as described below, will apply. Notwithstanding anything, to the contrary, prepayment privileges without penalty cannot be made on the date of payout/discharge or within 30 days of a full repayment.
- PI Increase: increased PI payment will carry over from mortgage year to mortgage year. The Increase Difference amount in the regular payment is considered when determining the available prepayment privilege amount in subsequent years.

APPENDIX For Reference – Firm Advantage Mortgage Additional Details

Chart below shows the GOC rate that will be used to calculate the prepayment charges/penalty

 GOC bond yield rate to be used based on the Number of Months Remaining in the Mortgage (including Current Month)	GOC Bond Yield Rate to be Used
Less than 12 months	Bank of Canada Overnight Lending Rate
From 12 months to up to 23 months	1 year
From 24 months to up to 35 months	2 year
From 36 months to up to 47 months	3 year
From 48 months to up to 60 months	4 year

Information below are examples of the estimated prepayment penalty calculations

Original Mortgage Amount $400,000
Remaining Mortgage Balance $350,000

Prepayment Privilege Amount with No Penalty
10% of Original Mortgage Amount = $40,000

Original Term 5 years
Remaining Term Today 3 Year, 5 months (41 months remaining)

Mortgage Contract Rate 5.25%
GOC Yield 3 Year term 4.50%

Option 1

Calculation of Three Months Interest Prepayment Penalty on a Full Payout Scenario:

1. Remaining Mortgage Balance * Mortgage Contract Rate (in decimal) = Annual Interest Cost
2. Annual Interest Cost / 4 = Three Months Interest Penalty Amount

Using the data for this example:
1. $350,000 * 0.0525 = $18,375
2. $18,375 / 4 = $4593.75

3 Months Interest - $4,593.75

Option 2

Calculation of 1% Per Annum Prepayment Penalty on a Full Payout Scenario:

1. Remaining Mortgage Balance * 1% /12 = Monthly Interest Cost
2. Monthly Interest Cost * Remaining Term (in months) = Penalty Amount

Using the data for this example:
1. $350,000 * 0.01/12 = $291.67
2. $291.67 * 41 = $11,958.33

1% Interest Amount = $11,958.33

Option 3

Calculation of IRD Prepayment Penalty on a Full Payout Scenario:

1. (Mortgage Contract Rate – (GOC Yield + 25 bps))/100 = rate difference expressed in decimal.
2. (Prepayment Amount * # of Months Remaining in the Term * Rate Difference) / 12 = IRD Amount.

Using the data for this example:
1. (5.25 – (4.50+0.25))/100 = 0.005
2. (350000 * 41 * 0.005) / 12 = $5979.17

IRD with GOC Rate - $5,979.17

Therefore the penalty for the client would be $11,958.33
